HorseMAREship Fans & Followers Are Now Bloggers

Missy Wryn established HorseMAREship in 2008 with its own website and forum focused on a woman's perspective of owning, riding, caring and loving horses. The forum welcomed both genders however and enjoyed healthy productive discussions from all who contributed. As the web world changed Missy blended HorseMAREship's website with her Training the Whole Horse® coordinating her Wholistic approach to horse care, training, riding and instruction all at one location on the web www.MissyWryn.com.

"HorseMAREship fans and followers are comprehensively supported on my site www.MissyWryn.com with online videos, training equipment, organic insect control products yada yada, but we were missing the chat, the interaction between one another. And since the forum was no longer supported by my website provider I took the plunge into blogging woo hoo!" Missy exclaims.

"I have heard my name spread around as the fringe gentler and I'm rather proud of that" adds Missy. "As a woman trainer in a male dominated industry I find it fascinating that 85% of horse ownership is women! Yet the training methods popularly taught are male nature oriented that do not align with my nature as a woman. So it all started while on the journey to developing my own effective training program & video series. I developed Training the Whole Horse® methods & techniques on the foundation of Do No Harm maintaining my horse's dignity and spirit intact while creating a safer bitless mount. The methods, techniques and equipment I have developed align with my nature as a woman which inspired HorseMAREship. Now like minded people, fringe gentlers like me", Missy giggles, "can have their voices heard and share support amongst one another on HorseMAREship's blog. So please join me on the HorseMAREship blog sharing your experiences, methods and tips with your fellow HorseMAREs. Much love, honor and respect" Missy ends.
